Mission as it is the story of the man who was the life and soul of the Mission. It is primarily a biography, written with the purpose of portraying the character and gifts of James Benjamin Mc Cullagh, and of showing how he applied his talents to the pioneering enterprise and subsequent development of the work he had undertaken. As the greater part of his life was spent in a far-distant and out-of-the-way corner of the world, he was necessarily known only to a limited number of people. Those who enjoyed the privilege of his friendship and were acquainted with the marvellous work he accomplished will ever remember him for the inspiration of his personality and example and also for the attractive winsomeness of his delightful humour and joyous temperament. The aim of his biography is to make him known to a wider circle, in the hope that others too may be inspired and helped by the story of his faith, his courage, his unceasing labours and the full use he made of his splendid gifts. The privilege of attempting to do this has been entrusted to me by his widow. It will be seen that the story is told, as far as possible, in the missionary's own words.
