This second edition covers radar technologies developed since 1987 -- plus those likely to appear in the next five years. It provides insight into specific issues unique to airborne systems, and contains extensive treatment of the medium-Pulse Repetition Frequency (PRF) waveform for more accurate performance analysis. The book also includes updates on new technologies in phased array radar, synthetic aperture, high-range resolution pulse compression, and doppler processing as well as a new software code for demonstrating medium-PRF blind-zone and clutter-map calculation.
