The Incredible Journey: The Jermaine Gardner Story Jacqui Kess-Gardner

This is a true story about a mother's wreckless faith in God. It is the story of a child born blind and with severe facial abnormalities. Doctors predicted that he would be retarded, hard of hearing, would suffer renal failure, and possible death by age two. They were wrong. Through the determination, prayers, and faith of his mother, Jacqui, the child, Jermaine, prevailed.

Jermaine was not retarded but emerged a musical genius and began playing classical piano at age 8 1/2 months old. His face was reconstructed by world famous plastic surgeon, Dr. Kenneth Salyer, who had seen the youngster on ABC World News, while reporter, Edie Magnus, was doing a story about the piano prodigy.

After many struggles and heartache, Jermaine goes on to become one of the greatest pianists of our time. Jermaine, now 20 attends a prestigious Conservatory of Music in the med west and has appeared on all local and national talk shows. He has also toured Japan twice. His 1st CD appropriately entitled, "The Incredible Journey" a classical CD, was released when Jermaine was 17. Jermaine released, "The Night Shift" a jazz CD at age 18, and "Home For The Holidays" a Christmas CD when he was 20.

This story tells of the pain, agony, defeat, and eventual triumph of a mother and child who, against all odds, emerged victoriously. This book appeals to parents, educators, people of religion, doctors, social workers, students, and people who either don't believe in or have never seen a modern day miracle. God is certainly in control of this young man's life and leads his mother, Jaccqui, to become an advocate for her son who was written off, by doctors, shortly after his birth. This is a "must read" book.
